FLOMPER

Malarko, the Street Artist and ceramicist who became synonymous with Brick Lane shutters will be coming to BSMT this July for his solo show 'FLOMPER'.

Much like the naive energy and clunky precariousness characteristic of his work, 'FLOMPER', as the Urban Dictionary suggests, promises to deliver the unexpected and something a little out of the ordinary- with a vibe!

Originally from South East London, Malarko's style is an interesting fusion of the low-brow art of early skate mags morphed with the actual experience painting on bumpy shutters which led him to simplify his designs. It was when he started studying ceramics in Stoke on Trent that his work really diversified and became his go-to medium with which to bastardise his experience of everyday life. Both playful and serious, Malarko has merged the appropriation of popular culture with found objects, styling his paintings and ceramics to elevate these ideas into something completely refreshing and outspoken.

Encompassing a brand new collection of contemporary paintings and ceramics, 'FLOMPER' will also be revisiting some old classics by the artist we have grown to love.
